Advertiſements.

WHereas the Uſe of common Cartridge-Paper hath been found very dangerous and inconvenient for the loading of Guns on board of Ships, by retaining Sparks of Fire in the Breech of the Gun after the Diſcharge, and alſo by rotting with the Damps, unavoidably in Ships at Sea, whereby the Powder kept in them will be ſpoil'd, and render'd uſeleſs as well as dangerous, by their burſting before they can be put into the Gun, to the Hazard of the Ship, its Crew and Cargo. To prevent which there is now invented a Method, for which his Majeſty has been graciouſly pleaſed to grant his Royal Letters Patent, for making and preparing Paper for Cartridges, which will not flame, nor retain any Sparks of Fire, and will likewiſe reſiſt Moiſture and Damps, ſo that it will not rot or be decay'd thereby; and Gunpowder will be preſerv'd in Cartridges made of this Paper always dry and fit for Service, better than in the common Powder Barrels, on which Account it is far preferable to Parchment, or any thing hitherto uſed for that Purpoſe. Theſe Advantages of preventing the fatal Accidents attending the Uſe of common Cartridge-Paper and Parchment, and of preſerving Gunpowder from Moiſts and Damps, muſt ſufficiently recommend the Uſe of this prepared Paper to all Commanders or Owners of Ships, who may be ſupply'd with any Quantity of Cartridges made to their Size; to be had only at Simon Vertue's, Stationer, in Sweeting's Alley, Royal Exchange, London. N. B. All Perſons who buy for Sale, ſhall be allowed a reaſonable Profit.
